HUMAN RIGHTS POLICY STATEMENT

1. Purpose

Weaver Bird Garment Manufacturers Ltd is committed to conducting its business responsibly and with respect for the dignity, rights, safety, and well-being of all people affected by our operations.

This Human Rights Policy Statement sets out the principles that guide our approach to human rights across our workplace, manufacturing activities, business relationships, and supply chain. It applies to our employees, management, contractors and, where relevant, suppliers and other business partners.

We seek to conduct our operations in accordance with applicable Kenyan laws and regulations and with respect for internationally recognised human rights principles.

2. Our Commitment

Weaver Bird recognises that businesses have a responsibility to respect human rights and to take reasonable steps to prevent and address adverse human rights impacts associated with their activities.

We are committed to treating people fairly, respectfully, and with dignity and to maintaining working practices that support safe, lawful, and responsible employment.

Our approach is guided by applicable national legislation and internationally recognised human rights and labour principles, including the principles reflected in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the International Labour Organization's fundamental principles and rights at work.

3. Fair and Respectful Employment

We are committed to providing a workplace in which employees are treated fairly and with respect.

Employment-related decisions, including recruitment, remuneration, training, promotion, assignment of duties, and termination, should be made fairly and in accordance with applicable employment requirements.

We do not tolerate unlawful discrimination, harassment, intimidation, bullying, or other forms of degrading or abusive treatment in the workplace.

We are committed to promoting equal opportunity and maintaining a professional working environment in which the dignity of every employee is respected.

4. Forced Labour and Human Trafficking

Weaver Bird does not tolerate forced, bonded, trafficked, compulsory, or involuntary labour within our operations.

Employment must be freely chosen. Employees must not be required to work through threats, coercion, intimidation, or other unlawful restrictions on their freedom.

We expect suppliers, contractors, and other relevant business partners working with Weaver Bird to uphold equivalent principles and comply with applicable labour laws.

5. Child Labour

Weaver Bird does not tolerate unlawful child labour.

We comply with applicable laws governing the minimum age for employment and the protection of young persons. No person shall be employed in work that is prohibited by law or that may unlawfully jeopardise their health, safety, education, development, or well-being.

We also expect our suppliers, contractors, and other relevant business partners to comply with applicable child-labour requirements.

6. Health, Safety and Working Conditions

As a garment manufacturer, we recognise the importance of maintaining safe and healthy working conditions throughout our production activities.

We are committed to identifying and managing workplace hazards and taking reasonable measures to reduce the risk of occupational injuries and illnesses.

Employees should receive appropriate information, instruction, supervision, and protective equipment where required for their work. Employees are also expected to follow established workplace health and safety procedures and promptly report hazards, accidents, unsafe conditions, or other safety concerns.

We seek to maintain clean, safe, and suitable working facilities for employees.

7. Working Hours, Wages and Employment Conditions

Weaver Bird is committed to complying with applicable requirements relating to wages, working hours, leave, rest periods, overtime, and other conditions of employment.

Employees should receive clear information regarding the terms and conditions applicable to their employment and should be compensated in accordance with applicable employment arrangements and legal requirements.

We recognise the importance of reasonable working conditions that support the health, safety, dignity, and well-being of employees.

8. Freedom of Association and Employee Voice

Weaver Bird respects employees' lawful rights relating to freedom of association and representation in accordance with applicable Kenyan law.

Employees should be able to raise workplace concerns, communicate with management, and use available grievance procedures without intimidation or retaliation for raising a genuine concern in good faith.

We encourage constructive communication between employees and management as part of maintaining a respectful and productive workplace.

9. Suppliers, Contractors and Business Partners

Our responsibility to respect human rights extends to how we conduct our business relationships.

We expect suppliers, contractors, subcontractors, and other relevant business partners to conduct their activities lawfully and responsibly and to respect fundamental labour and human rights principles.

We expect business partners, where applicable, to:

- Prohibit forced and unlawful child labour;
- Maintain safe and healthy working conditions;
- Treat workers fairly and with dignity;
- Prevent unlawful discrimination, harassment, and abuse;
- Comply with applicable wage, working-hour, and employment requirements; and
- Comply with applicable labour, health and safety, and human rights laws.

Where significant concerns are identified, Weaver Bird may engage with the relevant business partner to understand the issue and seek appropriate corrective action.

10. Identifying and Addressing Human Rights Concerns

We recognise that human rights risks may arise through our own activities or through our relationships with suppliers, contractors, and other parties.

We seek to identify and address material human rights risks relevant to our operations and business relationships. Where Weaver Bird identifies that its activities have caused or contributed to an adverse human rights impact, we will consider appropriate measures to address the matter.

The nature of the response will depend on the circumstances, severity of the issue, applicable legal requirements, and Weaver Bird's ability to influence the situation.

11. Reporting Concerns and Grievances

Employees and other relevant stakeholders are encouraged to report suspected violations of this policy, applicable labour standards, or other human rights concerns connected with Weaver Bird's operations.

Concerns may be raised with the employee's supervisor, departmental head, management, or another appropriate company representative.

Reports should be handled as fairly, respectfully, and confidentially as reasonably practicable.

Weaver Bird does not tolerate retaliation against a person for raising a genuine concern in good faith or participating appropriately in the investigation of such a concern.

Where a concern is substantiated, the company will consider appropriate corrective or remedial action in accordance with the circumstances and applicable requirements.

12. Responsibility and Implementation

Management is responsible for supporting the implementation of this policy and promoting awareness of its principles within the company.

Employees are expected to conduct themselves consistently with this policy and to raise concerns where they become aware of conduct that may conflict with its principles.

Relevant departments and managers may establish additional procedures, controls, training, or guidance where necessary to support the implementation of this policy.

13. Continuous Improvement

Weaver Bird recognises that respecting human rights requires ongoing attention.

We will periodically review our practices and this policy in light of changes in our operations, applicable legal requirements, identified risks, and relevant good practices.

Where appropriate, we will seek opportunities to strengthen our policies, procedures, employee awareness, supplier expectations, and mechanisms for addressing human rights concerns.
